BACKGROUND

In a Digital Transformation Study conducted by Microsoft Asia, business leaders are just starting to embrace disruptions as Asia ushers in the 4th Industrial Revolution. The study shows that 86 percent of Filipino executives

“...believe that they need to transform to a digital business to enable future growth, and that new data insights can lead to new revenue streams for their organizations.”

BACKGROUND

In the same study, business leaders admit that there are still a few barriers standing in the way of their digital transformation. These include:

- lack of organization leadership to ideate, plan and execute digital transformation;
- cyber threats and security concerns;
- lack of a digitally skilled workforce;
- lack of leadership shown by board of directors and executives;
- lack of the right governmental policies and ICT

In this context, the Digital Disruption Forum: Driving Philippine Competitiveness in the Digital Future will be held to tackle the developments, implications and challenges of technological shifts brought about by digital transformation in the various industry sectors, as well as the industrial competitiveness of the Philippines in the global arena.

OBJECTIVES

1. To convene business leaders, digital pundits, policy makers to discuss the challenges and opportunities that the 4th Industrial Revolution will bring to Philippine businesses from MSMEs to conglomerates and chart a common strategy and action agenda in coping with the digital disruption and accelerating digital transformation.
2. To promote digital technologies and best practices that Philippine businesses can adopt.

TARGET AUDIENCE

- CEOs and business leaders who see the need and opportunity to digitally transform their enterprises to improve competitiveness and growth
- Industry stakeholders who face the threat of digital disruption
- Government and policymakers who wish to improve the Philippines competitiveness and drive economic development
- Academic institutions which will train and develop students to be future innovators and drivers of technological development
